

RFID Journal Awards

Entry Form

The RFID Journal Awards will be given annually to end user companies that distinguish themselves through the application of RFID technologies. The goal of these awards is to recognize the leaders in creating and deploying RFID solutions and to foster adoption of RFID technologies by highlighting innovative deployments.

Deadline: All entries must be completed and submitted no later than 5 pm EST on Jan. 30, 2007.

How to submit your application: We have created three ways to submit an application.

1. Use this PDF to see what information is required. The list of questions in Section 4 will help you provide the information the judges need to evaluate your application. Then, create your submission in an MS Word document and e-mail it to awards@rfidjournal.com no later than 5 pm EST on Jan. 30, 2007. Be sure to provide all the required information.

2. Download the Entry Form in MS Word format from the RFID Journal Awards Web site and answer as many of the questions as possible as completely as possible. This will ensure that you provide the information the judges need to evaluate your application. Then, e-mail the MS Word document to awards@rfidjournal.com no later than 5 pm EST on Jan. 30, 2007. Be sure to provide all the required information.

3. Fill out the electronic form on the RFID Journal Awards Web site and submit your entry automatically. You will receive a confirmation by e-mail that it has been received. The electronic form is located at:

SECTION 3: CATEGORY

*Check the category for this entry:

Best RFID Implementation: This award will be given to the end user company that has demonstrated the best use of RFID technology to improve its manufacturing, supply-chain or retail operations. The winner will be the company that demonstrates RFID is delivering real value to shareholders.

Best Use of RFID to Enhance a Product or Service: This award will be given to the end user company that has used RFID technology to enhance an existing product or service. The winner will be the company that demonstrates that it is using RFID to provide additional value to its customers.

Most Innovative Use of RFID: This award will be given to the end user company with the most novel use of RFID technology. The winner will be the company that demonstrates that it is using RFID in a new or unusual way to solve a business problem, deliver a return on investment to shareholders or improve customer service.

SECTION 4: INFORMATION ABOUT THE RFID DEPLOYMENT

Please answer the following questions as completely as possible. This will ensure you provide the information the judges need to evaluate your entry.

1. What was the business problem your company was trying to solve, or what was the main goal of the RFID project?
2. What were your first steps in choosing an RFID system? Was an evaluation committee set up? Did your company hire a consultant or systems integrator to help with the project?
3. Did you set up a cross-functional team? If so, who was on it and how did they contribute to this project?
4. What testing did you do to ensure the RFID system would work?
5. If you launched a field trial, describe the trial, what was learned and how the final implementation was adjusted as a result.
6. How did you quantify the potential benefits of the system? Where were the expected benefits—in labor savings, increased efficiencies, shorter production times?

7. Describe the readers, tags and other hardware involved in the deployment. If possible, please provide vendor names and model numbers.
8. Was any customization needed? If so, please describe.
9. Where was the equipment installed? Describe the facility as well as the location within the facility.
10. What performance issues, if any, did you need to overcome?
11. How did you overcome problems with read rates or other performance issues?
12. Describe any software (middleware and applications) involved in the solution. If possible, please provide vendor names and product names and versions.
13. Describe the application in detail.
 - a. Where are readers placed?
 - b. Where are tags read?
 - c. What happens to the data from the reads?
 - d. How is it filtered?
 - e. To what systems is it passed on?
 - f. How is the data used?
14. How long did the project take to complete?
15. Was the project put into production? If so, when and where? Please describe the location and type of facility.
16. Are there any plans to add on to the original project? If there are, please describe these. Tab?
17. What type of training, if any, was provided for employees?
18. Describe any business processes that were changed and what the benefits of changing them were.
19. Describe the results of the implementation. If you cannot provide specific ROI numbers, provide percentage improvements. For example, inventory accuracy improved by 20 percent, labor costs were reduced 7 percent).

20. Please provide any additional details of the project.

21. Why do you believe this entry deserves an RFID Journal Award?
